FOR OUR DEALER PARTNERS

Every office phone booth we offer, in one guide.

An office phone booth – also called a call booth or phone pod – gives one person a quiet, private place to take calls without booking a meeting room. A few well-placed booths take the noise of phone and video calls off an open-plan floor.

Pods are ordered by price level, from budget to premium. Each pod has its key features and specification, followed by a side-by-side comparison, colours and finishes, and what we need to quote.

Acoustics explained

Every pod is quoted with its speech level reduction in decibels, measured to ISO 23351-1. Around 30 dB puts a normal speaking voice below the level of the surrounding office at one metre from the pod. These office phone booths sit between 28.6 and 30.3 dB.

Need it fast?

The Maxi Phone Pod is available on quick ship: delivered and installed in under a week when in stock. Ideal when a client's programme is tight.

Price bands (£ to ££££) reflect the range rather than the individual pod. Contact us for dealer pricing on any project.

BUYING GUIDE

How to choose an office phone booth.

01

Think about how long calls last

Quick calls suit a compact standing booth such as the HushPhone or HushFree XS. For longer calls, choose a booth with a height-adjustable desk and stool, like the HushFree S, MusePod MD1 or Maxi Phone, or the seated Bubliing S.

02

Work out how many you need

A common starting point is one booth for every 8–12 people on an open-plan floor, more if your team spends a lot of the day on calls. The Bubliing Twin puts two back-to-back workspaces in one footprint.

03

Check the floor space and ceiling

Most of our booths take around one square metre – the smallest are 1000 × 900mm. Allow room for the door to open, and check ceiling height: our booths are 2245–2320mm tall. We confirm this at the site survey.

04

Compare the acoustics

Our phone booths reduce speech by 28.6–30.3dB. The HushFree booths have the highest ratings, and MusePod offers Class A acoustics at a budget price.

05

Match the budget and lead time

The Maxi Phone is our most affordable booth and is often available within a week. MusePod is great value, HushClassic sits in the middle, and HushFree and Bubliing are premium, with lead times of around 6–12 weeks.

06

See it, then design it

Visit our Clerkenwell showroom to step inside and hear the difference, or design your phone booth in 3D – choose colours, fabrics and options, then send us the spec for a quote.
